

We're one of the most ambitious and innovative start-ups in Switzerland with more than 160 employees to date. We've been successfully developing and producing mobile and stationary AC and DC charging stations for electric cars since 2014. Our Juice Booster 2, for example, has made us world market leader in its charger class. We are steadily expanding this standing in a fast-growing market geographically, with innovative products and international partners. This is why we're looking to immediately hire an

Area Sales Manager UK (no gender preference)

You live in Great Britain. While your nationality is of no importance, you communicate fluently in English and if possible, also in German. You have prior experience establishing and building a local sales organization in a competitive market. As the point man on site, you must also be a successful salesperson yourself who can quickly translate initial leads into success. You'll simultaneously be building a team to cover the complete region.

You have experience in market analysis, personnel recruitment and management, as well as profit and loss responsibility.

You like being in the front-line action, rather than a backoffice administrator.

You're accustomed to offense-oriented approaches and negotiate astutely at all levels.

We're looking for a leader with personality who sees what work needs doing, can set the right priorities, and seize on what's needed at any given moment. With us, you'll find ample room to move and, congruently, broad expertise and responsibility. And while a vocational diploma or university degree is certainly welcome, you can tell already: we'll measure you by your deeds and abilities, not by your credentials on paper.

Our interdisciplinary team is flexible, dynamic, highly committed, rich in ideas and witty – all traits that you, too, must have if you want to achieve and be at your best. If this is all the right fit for you, we'll prove to be very happy together.

Your induction is planned to take place in the Swiss town of Winkel in the Canton of Zurich, close to Zurich Airport.

Your place of work will be the entire region, wherever your mission calls you.
